“Let’s Talk about Process Addictions”

Presentation objectives will be to: Identify and discuss over 30 recognized process addictions. Determine how to recognize process addictions vs. hobbies, passions or interests. Discuss why it is critical to identify process addictions during substance abuse treatment

Workshop Facilitator: Susan L. Anderson, LMHC, NCC, CSAT is a Licensed Mental Health Counselor, a Certified Sex Addiction Therapist, and is also certified in Trauma, Experiential Group Therapy, and Relapse Prevention Therapy. She graduated with the highest honors from her Clinical Mental Health Counseling Masters of Science program and has focused on both chemical and behavioral addiction diagnosis and treatment since entering the field. She has been working in both inpatient and intensive outpatient substance abuse/dual diagnosis treatment centers for several years as a group facilitator, primary therapist and clinical director. Ethical care and compassionate treatment for the vulnerable addiction population is the cornerstone of all work she conducts and that philosophy is shared by her clinical staff.

Susan has been passionate about the field of sex and love addiction for 8 years and developed an introductory 12-week group therapy protocol for cybersex addiction. Her work with sex, love and other process addictions like gambling and shopping add another layer of needed help to many clients with drug and alcohol issues. She has been presenting on the topics of process and sex addictions since 2015. She served on the board of her local Mental Health Counselors Association for 6 years and she was the Ethics Committee chairperson for the Florida Mental Health Counselors Association where she investigated claims of therapist misconduct statewide.
